Supervisor Glover offers second grant seminar

Contra Costa County Supervisor Federal Glover will sponsor an additional grant writing seminar for local nonprofit agencies.

Anticipating the severe impact budget shortfalls at the state and local levels will have on community based organizations, Glover began sponsoring the grantwriting workshops two years ago. “It was decided to hold a second seminar because the demand is so high this year,” said Glover, who represents District V.

“In the financially troubled times we live in, people are struggling, losing their jobs and homes and their lives and dreams are crumbling,” said Glover. “More is being asked of the social safety net and the need is great.”

“We have to come together as a community. That means local governments and those community-based organizations that provide aid, counseling, food and financial assistance have to help each other so we can deliver help to the residents of East County,” he said.

Since Glover began offering the free seminar, nonprofits serving East County have received hundreds of thousands of dollars from grants sponsored by private foundations and government agencies.

The workshop will be held at Los Medanos College Community Room (L109) on Sept. 9, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Pre-registration is required at Supervisor Glover’s website:

Expenses for the grant-writing workshop are covered by the Keller Canyon Landfill Mitigation Funds and supplemented by a grant from Wells Fargo Bank.
